

STEWART WILL CASE HEARING AGON TODAY

Undue Influence Charged in Disposition of the Property.

RIGHTS OF MINOR INVOLVED

Only the Personal Property, Amounting to About Ten Thousand Dollars, Involved in the Litigation—Proceedings Watched With Great Interest—Little Progress Made.

The hearing in the contest over the estate left by Miss Alberta Stewart was resumed this morning before Justice Barnard sitting for probate business. While Miss Stewart left an estate valued at about $100,000, only a small portion, the personal property, which is estimated at between $5,000 and $10,000 is involved in the present litigation. Notwithstanding the small amount the proceedings are being watched with great interest, because of the manner in which Miss Stewart made her will.

At the time of her death in the early part of July, 1901, Miss Stewart was but a little over fifteen years of age. She was residing with her uncle, Mr. Albert Stewart, her guardian, and his wife, her aunt. She was ill for some time before her death and left what is purported to be a will, devising all her estate to her uncle and aunt and their son Frank Stewart. The document, which is claimed to be her will, and which has been offered for probate, written in lead pencil, is without date and unsigned by the testatrix.

By the terms of the alleged will Miss Stewart cut off her maternal relatives without a cent and these instituted proceedings to contest her will.

Little Progress Made.

Although the matter has been on trial for several days, but little progress has been made in the way of the introduction of testimony. The little evidence which has been adduced was offered to show that Miss Stewart always expressed great regard for her maternal relatives. From this it will be contended by the contestants that if she had not been influenced to the contrary, Miss Stewart would have named them as beneficiaries in her will.

The will is being contested on the grounds that undue influence was brought to bear upon the testatrix and because of her age and mental incapacity. On the other hand, it will be contended by her uncle and aunt and cousin, who are defending the competency of the girl to make a will, that she had often expressed herself as intending to devise her estate as she did, and that she was fully aware of what she was doing and acted of her own volition in the matter.

Text of the Document.

The text of the document alleged to be the will of Miss Stewart is as follows: "This is to certify that I (Alberta Stewart), at my death, bequeath all my earthly belongings, both personal and real estate, to my uncle, Albert Stewart; my aunt, Anna Belle Stewart, and my cousin, Frank Stewart, and none other. If my uncle should die without making a will, his share is to go to my aunt, and should my aunt happen to die without having made a will, her portion is to go to my uncle, and should they both die without wills, both shares are to go to Frank. Should Frank die his share is to be equally divided between my uncle and aunt."

Caveats protesting against the probating of the document as the will of Miss Stewart were filed by Robert S. Roseway, Charles F. Roseway, Anna M. Roseway, Geoffrey Roseway, Jr., William H. Roseway, and Ella V. Johnson, maternal uncles and aunts of Miss Stewart. The beneficiaries under the will are represented by Attorneys R. Ross Perry and Fulton Lewis, and the caveators by Henry E. Davis and Edward L. Giles.

The document has been framed by Register of Wills and is being used as an exhibit at the trial of the issues involved.

BEYER WILL CONTEST IN SUPREME COURT

Interesting Case Being Fought Before Highest Tribunal.

Contestants Have Received Verdicts in Their Favor in Lower District Courts.

An interesting case which is known in the District courts as the Beyer will contest, was argued recently in the United States Supreme Court. The litigation was commenced in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and involves the distribution of real and personal property valued at about $50,000. The real estate involved is what is known as the Brightwood Hotel, which was conducted by Mrs. Mary Beyer prior to her death in July, 1900.

By her will Mrs. Beyer left her entire estate to her nephew, Louis Beyer, Jr., and her niece, Helen B. Johnson. She also directed that her husband, Louis Beyer, Sr., should be provided with all home comforts during his life by the beneficiaries under her will, so long as they retained possession of the property.

Mr. Beyer Provided For.

It appears from the records that the nephew and niece voluntarily decided to the surviving husband on the day after the funeral the greater portion of the property left by Mrs. Beyer.

Notwithstanding this liberal donation, Louis Beyer, Sr., Caroline LeFevre and Elizabeth Mann, sisters of Mary Beyer, residing at Philadelphia, joined in filing a caveat against the will of Mrs. Beyer, but by some continued the contest.

Thereafter Mrs. LeFevre, through her attorney, Clayton E. Emig, filed a caveat in her own behalf and later on filed a bill in equity in the Supreme Court, setting forth that the said Mary Beyer did not possess testamentary capacity to make a will and that she was induced to make the will in favor of the nephew and niece by undue influence.

THOMAS MORSE TO FACE CHARGE OF MURDER

Trial to Begin in the Criminal Court This Morning.

Alleged to Have Killed James Haskins Near Chevy Chase Last December.

Thomas Morse, colored, will be placed on trial this morning in Criminal Court No. 1, before Justice Anderson and a jury, for the murder of James Haskins on December 1st, near Chevy Chase.

Immediately after the shooting of Haskins the accused was sent to summon medical aid. He, however, did not return with the physician, although he summoned one. Soon after the shooting Morse stated that Haskins had committed suicide.

According to the report of the affair at the time, Haskins was shot in the head by Morse in a barn near Chevy Chase Circle, where they were both at work. It was also said that the men had had a quarrel about a woman and that it was renewed the morning Haskins was shot.

When Morse reported the shooting of Haskins to their employer the latter put Morse upon his horse and sent him for a physician. As stated, the physician was summoned.

On his way back to the barn, Morse, it is said, met a man who informed him that Haskins was already dead. This apparently frightened Morse, for instead of continuing his way to the barn, he turned and fled. He was captured the following day at Rockville, Md., to which place he was taken by the local police.

When taken into custody Morse admitted his identity, but claimed that the shooting of Haskins was entirely accidental. In support of this statement he said that he and Haskins had been engaged in shooting rats in the barn, when the latter was accidentally killed.

The bullet which killed Haskins entered the right side of his head.

FEDERAL BUILDINGS FOR ALEXANDRIA

New Postoffice and Custom House in Sight.

Citizens Hail $60,000 Appropriation by Congress With Delight—Many Sites Talked Of.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., April 27.—The prospect of a new postoffice and custom house building in this city, which now seems an assured fact, has been hailed with delight by the citizens here, who hail the passage of the omnibus bill, the passage of which is conceded to be a certainty. The prospects are hailed with delight by all Alexandrians.

Representative John F. Rixey a large share of the credit is due for the appropriation being included by the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds. Both Democrats and Republicans have worked indefatigably to get the matter through, the movement being strictly non-partisan.

Among those who did much for the cause were Collector of Internal Revenue Park Agnew, Postmaster Joseph E. Crump, and Collector of Customs Marshall L. King, all three leading Republicans, and Mayor George L. Simpson, Councilman Frederick Paff, and M. B. Harlow, president of the Business Men's League. The latter three are Democrats.

The present building here was erected about forty-five years ago, and is now deemed entirely inadequate. There is insufficient room for the postoffice, and the other offices overhead, including the office of collector of internal revenue, are badly cramped for room.

Extra Ground Needed.

The grounds surrounding the building are in fair proportion to the building, but it is believed that the enlarged structure would necessitate the purchase of additional property if equal symmetry is to be preserved. It is reported that Mr. John M. Johnson, who owns an adjoining lot, has been approached in regard to his yard, which is on Prince Street. It is said that Mr. Laurence Stabler, who owns a house and lot south of the postoffice building, has also been sounded in regard to the price of his property.
